2. WaterISAC Posts Notes from COVID-19 Working Group Meetings and Government Briefings

WaterISAC Members:

WaterISAC has posted to its COVID-19 crowdsourcing webpage the notes from two meetings it has conducted with a water and wastewater sector-focused working group. The COVID-19 working group participants consist of WaterISAC members and staff who have been sharing and discussing current and anticipated impacts of the ongoing nationwide emergency and what they have been planning and doing to respond to and mitigate these impacts. The working group has discussed the potential for supply chain disruptions (identifying materials that water and wastewater utilities rely upon to support their essential functions) and plans implemented and actions taken to ensure business continuity (such as what has been done to prevent COVID-19 cases among employees and what would be done if employees are diagnosed with COVID-19), among other topics. The working group decided to share the notes from these meetings with the entire WaterISAC membership so that they could be helpful in informing their own plans and actions. These documents have been marked TLP:GREEN, which allows for them to be shared widely throughout the sector. Feel free to share them with other water and wastewater utilities as well as other partners, but not with the press and not on websites and other locations where they could be accessible to the public.

WaterISAC has also posted TLP:GREEN notes from recent Broad Stakeholder Calls hosted by the U.S. Department of Homeland Security's Cybersecurity and Infrastructure Security Agency (CISA) and the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA). Similar to the working group notes, the information contained in these documents might be helpful to members as they respond to and mitigate the impacts of COVID-19. These calls are open to critical infrastructure operators and other stakeholders. They are being held every Tuesday and Thursday from 3:00 to 4:00 pm ET until further notice. The call-in information is as follows:
